Welcome to the 2016 AAPA Convention in Denver!

It is our pleasure to welcome you to the Asian American Psychological Association (AAPA) annual convention. This event is the culmination of a great amount of dedicated planning, reflection, and outreach. Our theme: "Beyond "Yellow" Borders: Revealing Our Diverse Community, Expanding Our Coalition Horizon" was selected to examine the identity and roles of AAPA within the larger AAPI community and from an interdisciplinary frame.

It seems fitting this year that we are meeting in Denver, Colorado, for the first time, as AAPA continues to grow in new directions. While Asian Americans have historically had larger numbers on both the West and East Coasts and Hawai‘i, the increase in population in the Mountain and Midwest regions signifies the increased visibility of Asian Americans throughout our country. Today, being Asian American embodies so many different experiences, which makes our community even more beautiful and diverse.

Further, over the 50 years since the passage of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965, a sociopolitical community of culturally diverse Asian Americans has taken shape. Though they were promised the land of opportunity, many of our ancestors faced unexpectedly intense racial discrimination. While they originated from diverse countries, they were lumped into one racial category within the United States- which eventually developed into many stereotypes and even hierarchies between different ethnic groups.

Many recent events highlight the interconnected struggles and successes of AAPI's with other marginalized groups in the United States. The tragedies in Orlando signify the work that we need to do in battling homophobia, transphobia, Islamophobia, and the intersection of them all. The Peter Liang trial in New York City signifies our need to be more proactive in the Black Lives Matter movement and to recognize the ways that we participate in, or subtly condone, anti-Black racism.

While discussing issues like these are difficult, and sometimes emotionally exhausting, we are confident that fruitful connections will emerge as we share this opportunity to learn from one another. We also hope we can dialogue about our overlapping roles as AAPI psychologists, students, community activists, consumers, scientists, educators, caretakers, and allies.

We hope you are as excited as we are to see the incredibly varied presentations and posters featured at this year's convention. AAPA has been our cultural and professional home, a place where one can study and reflect upon topics such as culture bound syndromes, intersectionality, multidisciplinary mental health, internalized racism, and culture specific measures, all in one day. Here, we honor our pioneering AAPI founding psychologists, while also welcoming (and embracing) students and first time attendees.

Please open your mind, and let us hear your voices! Our first goal is for everyone to gain something from other attendees today- whether be it mentoring advice, research collaborations, coalition building, or others. Our second goal is to continue to converse about ways to strengthen our community and to celebrate our diverse identities and experiences.

Finally, don't forget to thank our tireless 2016 convention chairs Nori Lim, and Gloria Wong- who started planning this day for you almost the minute our 2015 convention wrapped! This would not be possible without our cadre of volunteers who organize the scholarship book drive, banquet and awards ceremonies, registration and sessions. For them, and their demonstration of the spirit of AAPA, we are eternally thankful.

Sincerely,

Kevin Nadal, Ph.D. Helen H. Hsu, Psy.D.

A Message from the 2016 AAPA Convention Co-Chairs

On behalf of the 2016 AAPA Convention Committee, welcome to Denver! We are excited to hold our convention in Denver for the first time! Denver is a vibrant city that has seen a tremendous growth in the AAPI population since 2000. We hope you take advantage of your time in Denver to network, learn, collaborate, and dialogue with your fellow AAPA colleagues.

Our theme this year, “Beyond ‘Yellow’ Borders: Revealing Our Diverse Community, Expanding Our Coalition Horizon,” aims to emphasize the presidential mission of drawing awareness to the diverse identities within the AAPI community and to underscore the importance of building coalitions with other marginalized groups in the U.S. Throughout the day, our program will highlight the diversity within our community as well as AAPI’s role in the larger social reform movement. We jump start the day with a keynote address by Dr. Ali Mattu, Ph.D., who will discuss social justice in the era of social media. As the day continues, you will find great diversity in the work of AAPA’s members and colleagues; we put together a number of excellent presentations and an extensive poster session showcasing cutting-edge research. A panel discussion of AAPA division representatives on social justice and action, anchored by Dr. Alvin Alvarez, Ph.D., will serve as a capstone to our afternoon sessions.

Be sure to join in on networking opportunities, including one of several lunchtime discussion groups and the mentor-mentee reception, as well as our afternoon reception and poster session. We hope you come close the day with us at the annual AAPA evening banquet held at Aloy Modern Thai Restaurant. The family-style dining experience will provide a great opportunity to solidify new relationships or reconnect with old friends! On Thursday afternoon, come play and/or talk smack at our 7th annual Student vs. Faculty basketball game. Don’t forget to connect your social networks to this year’s programming. Follow @AAPAonline on Twitter and tweet #aapa2016 to let your friends and family know what you’re excited about at this year’s convention! Plus, be sure to “Like” Asian American Psychological Association on Facebook, where you can view live status updates and follow convention photos.

Lastly, we want to send out a huge thank you to our fantastic Convention Committee. Without their energy and many months of work, this event would not be possible! Their badges are marked with a special ribbon so please take a moment to thank them with a smile and a high-five. Again, thank you for joining us and we hope you have an enjoyable, enlightening, inspiring, and energizing experience at this year’s Convention!

The Book Drive committee is pleased to announce that over 50 publishers have donated over 110 titles this year! Thank you to all of our generous contributors who have been so supportive of our cause. We would like to thank Gloria Wong-Padoongpatt, her team of research assistants, and Taylor Lott for their generous assistance.

We are excited to feature several genres, including clinical and counseling psychology, social psychology, self-help, politics, children’s books, adult fiction, Asian American studies, sociology, poetry, education, and cookbooks. Some notable authors whose books will be sold include: Andrew Aoki, Brian Barry, Ping Chen, Shilpa Dave, Jay Deshpande, Chitra Banerjee Divakaruni, Nicholas Gulig, Nagayama Hall, C. Winter Han, Wei-Chin Hwang, Joseph LeDoux, Chang-Rae Lee, Frederick Leong, Rodney L. Lowman, Jeffery Mio, Celeste Ng, Sumie Okazaki, Wang Ping, Matthew Salesses, Marjorie Sarnat, Lisa See, Derald Wing Sue, Okivoshi Takeda, Paul Yoon, Nolan Zane, and Jeffery Zeig.

Several 2015 and 2016 releases will be available for purchase, including: Evidence-Based Psychological Practice with Ethnic Minorities: Culturally Informed Research and Clinical Strategies, by Nolan Zane, Guillermo Bernal, & Frederick Leong (APA); The Hundred Year Flood by Matthew Salesses (Little A); Geisha of a Different Kind: Race & Sexuality in Gaysian America, by C. Winter Han and Desi Hoop Dreams: Pickup Basketball and the Making of Asian American Masculinity by Stanley I. Thangaraj (NYU Press); Clinical Mental Health Counseling: Fundamentals of Applied Practice by Donna Sheperis and Carl Sheperis (Pearson); Diversity and Leadership by Jean Lau Chin (Sage); Chord by poet Rick Barot (Sarabande Books); South Korea’s Education Exodus: The Life and Times of Study Abroad, edited by Adrienne Lo, Nancy Abelmann, Soo Ah Kwon, and Sumie Okazaki (University of Washington Press); Love the Stranger by Jay Deshpande and North of Order by Nicholas Gulig (YesYes Books).

All purchases made at the Book Drive will help fund AAPA student travel to next year’s convention. Please be sure to stop by the Book Drive to help support our students! Several forms of payment will be accepted.
CONTINUING EDUCATION (FREE)

We are proud to announce that we will offer up to 3 free CEUs to attendees of three sessions (1 CE/session) in this year’s convention! The selected sessions are indicated below.

This program is approved for 3.0 hours of continuing education. The University of Denver, Graduate School of Professional Psychology (GSPP) is approved by the American Psychological Association to sponsor continuing education for psychologists. GSPP maintains responsibility for this program and its content.

REGISTRATION, BREAKFAST, and EARLY BIRD ACTIVITY: 7:30AM – 8:30AM
Room 320 Lounge

Please proceed to Room 320 Lounge to collect your registration information, then meet old and new friends, and grab some breakfast. Meet, greet, and mingle with current, past, and emerging leaders of AAPA during the early bird reception; this is a great networking opportunity for students and early career professionals.

WELCOME REMARKS & ANNOUNCEMENTS: 8:45AM – 9:00AM
Room 320

Opening remarks by Drs. Noriel Lim and Gloria Wong-Padoongpatt, 2016 AAPA Convention Co-Chairs, and greetings by Dr. Kevin Nadal, President of AAPA, and Dr. Helen Hsu, Vice President of AAPA.
DR. ALI MATTU, PHD

Dr. Ali Mattu is a clinical psychologist at the Columbia University Medical Center where he specializes in the treatment of anxiety. Outside of the hospital, Dr. Mattu focuses on translating psychological science into practical applications people can use to make their lives better. He hosts THE PSYCH SHOW on YouTube, created the award-winning Brain Knows Better Blog, and contributes to television programs as well as pop culture convention panels.

Dr. Mattu is known as a “forward thinker” in the field of psychology and was named one of The Mighty’s mental health heroes of 2015.

ROOM 320
Interactive Session – A Multi-Modal Intervention Model for South Asian American Women Survivors of Intimate Partner Violence (1 CE)

Preet Kaur, MA, The George Washington University
Uma Millner, PhD, Boston University

Intimate partner violence (IPV) is a serious and highly prevalent concern among the South Asian American community, but there is a paucity of research examining IPV experiences and subsequent mental health service utilization within this community. The presenters will provide a conceptual framework on this issue that integrates collaborative dialogue among participants on the sociocultural contexts that inform attitudes and responses to gender-based violence within this community. Additionally, the presenters will outline a proposal for an online platform delivering a brief culturally-specific trauma intervention that aligns with the task-shifting model of mental health treatment.

ROOM 440/540
Invited Session – Asian Americans and Problematic Drinking: Current Trends, Future Directions and Translational Implication

Derek Iwamoto, PhD, University of Maryland – College Park, 2014 AAPA Early Career Award Winner

The bulk of the literature on Asian Americans reports that this population is relatively low risk for alcohol abuse; however, within-group differences in alcohol use among Asian Americans have been largely overlooked.
research has focused on this area of research by examining the socio-cultural determinants and mechanisms of problematic drinking trajectories among Asian Americans. In addition my work has identified high-risk sub-groups of Asian American young adults who abuse alcohol and experience alcohol-related problems at disproportionately higher rates compared to other racial groups. Current trends, future directions and translational implications will be discussed.

ROOM 442
Symposium – Gay Filipino Men: Dating/Relationships in Post-Same Sex Marriage Ruling Era

Gregory Desierto, PsyD, WestCoast Children's Clinic
Kevin Nadal, PhD, City University of New York
Rani Marcos, CIIS

Contemporary Filipino American and homosexual identities and issues in light of recent American gay civil rights movement, continues to be an understudied area in the field of psychology, sociology, ethnic studies, and queer theory. This symposium will include three panelists who will present personal subjective experiences and stories to highlight ways that the U.S. Supreme Court same-sex marriage ruling in June 2015 have impacted their Filipino and homosexual identities, as well as their personal and professional lives. How has this ruling shaped their thoughts, views, hopes, and dreams about their cultural identity, dating life, relationships, and marriage? In what ways have this political movement impacted their sexuality, sexual orientation, and their relationship and identification with Filipino American culture? Panelists will attempt to address these questions and weave their phenomenological and subjective experiences to critical theory, queer theory, and ethnic studies. Through the panelists’ stories and phenomenological experiences, the audience will gain an appreciation for and develop cultural humility and openness to the complex intersection of Filipino American and homosexual identities. Future research and implications for clinical and political action will be discussed.

ROOM 640
Interactive Session – Visibility and Invisibility II: Critical Encounters and Empowerment

Janet Chang, PhD, Smith College
Frederick Leong, PhD, Michigan State University
Sherry Wang, PhD, Santa Clara University
Byron Zamboanga, PhD, Smith College

This interactive session is designed to facilitate constructive dialogue about overcoming the visibility and invisibility of Asian American faculty and students. The session will serve as a forum to discuss the importance of mentoring and understanding how to navigate the academy. Discussion will also center on the politics of positions, motives, and morals that influence academic decision making and leadership. The session will focus on strategies of empowerment, including developing a productive professional identity and support system, responding to (rather than reacting to) critical encounters, and identifying levers for change in the academy.

ROOM 329
Symposium – Cultural Socialization: Blending Cultures and Ethnic Boundaries

Amy Mee-Ran Kobus, PhD, Oregon Health & Science University
Sumie Okazaki, PhD, New York University
Amy Kobus, PhD, Oregon Health & Science University
Amy Harms, University of Minnesota
Richard M. Lee, PhD, University of Minnesota

In this symposium, we report on three studies, using varying methodologies, to investigate cultural socialization in diverse family contexts. The first presentation uses focus groups and individual interviews to examine how second generation Asian-heritage parents engage in racial-ethnic socialization of their school age children. The second presentation uses secondary analysis of a national survey of adoptive parents to describe demographics, social characteristics, and cultural socialization practices in families with transracial international adoptions across multiple countries of origin. The third presentation uses qualitative interviews with adult Chinese adoptees to explore ethnic socialization experiences and the development of ethnic identity development.

BREAKOUT SESSION #2

11:20AM – 12:20PM

ROOM 320

Interactive Session – AAPI Therapist Self-Disclosure of Identities (1 CE)

Yun Lu, MA, University of Maryland – College Park

Brian Taehyuk Keum, MA, University of Maryland – College Park

Jeffrey G. Yeung, MA, University of Maryland – College Park

Theoretical and empirical work has mostly focused on White therapists conducting a self-disclosure in broaching the topic of racial/ethnic differences with clients of color (Hays, 2016; Constantine & Kwan, 2003). The dialogue on multicultural competency has been silent about how therapists of color, such as AAPI therapists, negotiate their socio-politically oppressed identities when working with diverse clients. This interactive session aims to explore AAPI therapists’ experiences related to explicitly bringing attention to their identities when they (a) hold international identities, (b) work with White clients, and (c) bring in intersectional identities ranging from apparent to invisible and/or concealable statuses.

ROOM 440/540

Invited Session: 2016 AAPA Dissertation Panel

Alicia Ibaraki, PhD, University of Oregon

Gloria Wong-Padoongpatt, PhD, University of California - Davis

Stephanie Carrera, PhD, Iowa State University

Mechanisms that Perpetuate Health Care Disparities: Physician Stereotypes and Bias

Alicia Ibaraki, PhD, University of Oregon

Although Asian Americans are the only racial group for whom cancer is the leading cause of death, physicians recommend cancer screening to Asian Americans at nearly half the rate as White Americans. This study tests a mechanism that may underlie low recommendation rates based on a conceptual model that integrates the literature on information processing and decision making with Asian American stereotypes, specifically the Model Minority and the Perpetual Foreigner. The sample consisted of 167 primary care physicians who made cancer screening referrals in response to clinical vignettes. Implicit and explicit attitudes about Asian American stereotypes were assessed and used as predictors of screening behavior.

Impact, Mechanisms, and Individual Variations in the Stress Response to Racial Microaggressions among Asian Americans

Gloria Wong-Padoongpatt, PhD, University of California - Davis

Researchers are interested in examining the negative impact of racial microaggressions on psychological and physical health, yet only a few studies have uncovered the mechanisms by which these incidents affect mental and physical well-being. This study 1) experimentally tested the racial nature of the microaggression event, 2) examined threats to self-concept as possible mediators of the microaggression-generated stress, and 3) investigated individual differences in anger tendency and sensitivity to rejection as moderators. Findings indicated that race of the perpetrator had an impact on stress in that a White perpetrator elicited more stress compared to an Asian American perpetrator. Experience with a White perpetrator, compared to an Asian American perpetrator, lowered implicit self-esteem, which resulted in more stress. A three-way interaction between gender, perpetrator race, and rejection sensitivity was found. Implications for the well-being of marginalized individuals and intergroup interactions across social hierarchies are discussed.

Interpersonal risk factors, shame, and depression among Asian Americans: A longitudinal study of perfectionistic family discrepancy as a moderator

Stephanie Carrera, PhD, Iowa State University

This study extended Joiner’s (2005) Interpersonal-Psychological Theory of Suicide to Asian Americans’ experiences with depression. A mediation and moderation of the direct effect model was tested, in which a) interpersonal shame mediates the relations between thwarted belongingness, perceive burdensomeness, and depression; and b) perfectionistic family discrepancy moderates the direct effects of thwarted belongingness and perceived burdensomeness on depression. Results supported the mediation hypothesis and demonstrated that Asian Americans with high family expectations for perfectionism may be at higher risk for depression that stems from interpersonal shame, thwarted belongingness, and perceived burdensomeness. Future research directions and counseling implications will be discussed.

ROOM 442
Symposium – Intersectionality at Work: LGBTQ Asian Americans in the Media, Clinical Encounters, and Academia

Saeromi Kim, PhD, DLGBTQQ
G. Nicole Rider, PhD, DLGBTQQ
Kevin Nadal, PhD, President, AAPA

The common theme of this symposium is to bring awareness to the particular experiences and challenges of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer (LGBTQ) Asian Americans in various contexts and from divergent points of view. The first presenter will expose the impact of mass media representations of Asian Americans and transgender individuals as sexualized identities. The second presentation will focus on self-disclosures in clinical encounters on a college campus from the perspective of an out, queer Asian American psychologist. The third presentation will highlight the unique challenges of LGBTQ Asian American scholars. Potential applications for increasing awareness and advocacy will be addressed.

ROOM 640
Interactive Session – From Graduate Student to Early-Career Professional: Lessons and Wisdom among AAPI Women

Linh Luu, MS, Lehigh University
Grace Kim, PhD, Wheelock College
Khanh Dinh, PhD, University of Massachusetts, Lowell
Catherine Hsieh, PhD, University of California, Irvine
Diane Hayashino, PhD, California State University, Long Beach
Jessica Liu, MA, Lehigh University
Chu Kim-Prieto, PhD, The College of New Jersey
Tiffany Chang, MA, Indiana University, Bloomington

Unlike many of the milestones that are being supported/facilitated by graduate programs, transitioning out of student role into early-career professional, is rarely discussed. Given the growth of AAPI women seeking and completing graduate degrees in psychology, there is an increasing need to better understand the experiences of this group. The purpose of this session is to address considerations and challenges, and to share wisdom for AAPI women who transition(ed) from graduate students to early-career professionals. With a group of diverse panelists in regard to ethnicity and career trajectories, the topic will be discussed in light of intersectionality of different identities.
ROOM 444
Interactive Session – Asian-Heritage Parents, Racial Socialization, and Discrimination: When a Research Topic Becomes Real
Tai Chang, PhD, Alliant University, San Francisco
E.J.R. David, PhD, University of Alaska, Anchorage
Lisa Kiang, PhD, Wake Forest University
Richard M. Lee, PhD, University of Minnesota
In a demographically diverse country such as the United States where the Asian-heritage population is increasing (Pew Research Social and Demographic Trends, 2012), socializing children over issues regarding race, ethnicity, and culture is central to their development. In this interactive session, we bring together three scholars whose research has focused on discrimination and/or parental racial and cultural socialization. The presenters are also parents of young children. We will consider how our academic and personal worlds intersect, and explore what this intersection means both for our research and personal lives in understanding and preparing our children to face discrimination.

ROOM 329
Symposium – We Broke the Bamboo Ceiling, Now What? Lessons Learned from Filipino American Leaders
Krista Chronister, PhD, University of Oregon
Alvin Alvarez, PhD, San Francisco State University
Richelle Concepcion, PsyD, Tripler Army Medical Center
The purpose of this symposia is to present the unique leadership experiences of, and lessons learned, from three Filipino American psychologists who inhabit leadership positions within academic and military health care institutions. Each panelist will share their experiences and vantage points as leaders in their respective institutions, and share honestly and openly the opportunities and challenges once the “bamboo ceiling” has been broken. Their leadership experiences are informed by the intersections of their diverse gender and ethnic identities, age, and work contexts.

LUNCH & LUNCHTIME DISCUSSIONS
12:20PM – 1:30PM
Box lunches are available in the foyer of Room 320. After picking up your lunch, you are warmly invited to join one of the discussion groups listed below:

Room 440/540 – Division on Students
Room 442 – Division on LGBT Issues
Room 640 – Division on Practice
Room 444 – Division on South Asian Americans
Room 329 – Division on Filipino Americans

BREAKOUT SESSION #3
1:40PM – 2:40PM

ROOM 320
Symposium – Empirically-Based Strategies for Enhancing Cultural Inclusion in Evidence-Based Treatments (1 CE)
Cindy Y. Huang, PhD, Asian American Center on Disparities Research, University of California, Davis
Little attention has been paid to determining the social validity of evidence-based treatments by ethnocultural minority groups. Social validity is defined as the perceived social importance and acceptability/appropriateness of an intervention by an ethnocultural group. It has implications for treatment utilization and response, as it may impact the willingness of a client to engage in mental health treatment or follow through with treatment recommendations. This symposium will present two studies that examined the social validity of two evidence-based treatments for adults and children, and a third that investigated a critical treatment process, self-disclosure, and its potential association with social validity.

ROOM 440/540
Invited Session – Paving the Way for Future Leaders: AAPA Leadership Pipeline and Development

Nellie Tran, PhD, San Diego State University
Richelle Concepcion, PsyD, Tripler Army Medical Center

This presentation will explore leadership among Asian Americans and the Leadership Fellows Program. The co-chairs will discuss what leadership means and what leadership development looks like within the program.

ROOM 442
Interactive Session – Advocacy, Workforce Development, Cultural Relevance and More!

Christina Shea, MS, Richmond Area Multi-Services, Inc.
Flora Chan, PsyD, Richmond Area Multi-Services, Inc.

Richmond Area Multi-Services, Inc. (RAMS) as a lead organization, Asian and Pacific Islander Mental Health Collaborative (APMHC) partners with three API groups (Samoan Wellness Initiative, Filipino Mental Health Initiative, Southeast Asian Mental Health Initiative) and six grass root community based organizations, strive to outreach, provide prevention and early intervention services, and anti-stigma campaign to under-represented API communities in San Francisco. We will present our history and effort in the past three years, our successes and challenges, and our hope and plan in the next three years. We will invite feedback and discussion on culture, resiliency, trauma, immigration, bias.

ROOM 640
Symposium – The Future of Asian American Psychology

Gordon Hall, PhD, University of Oregon
E. J. David, PhD, University of Alaska, Anchorage
Sumie Okazaki, PhD, New York University
Frederick Leong, PhD, Michigan State University

Asian American psychology has existed as a discipline for over 40 years but has remained on the periphery of psychology. Asian Americans have typically been an afterthought in research and have been added onto research to demonstrate how they are similar to or different from other groups. There has been limited research on the unique characteristics of Asian Americans or the diversity within and among Asian American ethnic groups. The focus of this symposium will be on research approaches that capitalize on the nuances of Asian American groups and on the diversity of Asian Americans in domestic and global contexts.

ROOM 444
Interactive Session – Multiracial Asian Americans: The Meanings of being Mixed

Alicia del Prado, PhD, The Wright Institute

Multiracial Asian Americans are a growing community in the United States. A multiracial Asian American is defined as someone who has heritage of an Asian background and one or more additional racial backgrounds, such as White, Black, or Native American. Despite the increasing numbers of this population, training for psychologists regarding their unique and shared psychological experiences is lacking. Therefore, this session will cover the psychosocial issues that are common for multiracial Asian American persons, especially as they pertain to identity, strengths, discrimination, and mental health. Furthermore, clinical tools will be provided for effectively serving and advocating for this community.

ROOM 329

Interactive Session – Across Psychological Borders: Engaging South Asian Americans in Multidisciplinary Mental Health Work

- Hina Pant, PhD, Columbia University
- Ulash Thakore-Dunlap, MS, The Wright Institute
- Ankita Krishnan, BA, Purdue University
- Puni Kalra, PhD, New Perspectives Coaching & Consulting Services, LLC
- Preet Kaur Sabharwal, MA, American School of Professional Psychology at Argosy University

The purpose of this interactive panel session is to discuss ways in which mental health professionals and educators engage with South Asian Americans around issues such as therapy, advocacy, community participation, and graduate school training. The panelists will draw from their personal experiences to discuss what makes this work challenging and uniquely rewarding, along with some insights about ways in which South Asian American representation can be increased across different approaches to the learning and practice of Psychology. At the end of this discussion, the facilitator will invite the audience to share their experiences on this issue and/or ask questions so as to have a dialogue on better ways to support the South Asian community.

CLOSING KEYNOTE – SPECIAL SESSION ON SOCIAL JUSTICE: 2:40PM – 3:40PM

Room 320

This Special Session on Social Justice will directly address this year’s theme. We invited a panel of representatives from five AAPA divisions to discuss how they participate in social activism. Panelists will share personal experiences with social justice, current issues they are addressing, and their vision for future endeavors. They also will give suggestions about how AAPA members can become more involved in social justice.

PANELISTS: Grace Kim (DoW, APA Division 35/Section 5); Alicia del Prado (DoFA); Puni Kalra (DoSAA); Saeromi Kim (DLGBTQQ); and Ming Tu (DoS).

DISCUSSANT: Dr. Alvin Alvarez.

AWARDS & ANNOUNCEMENTS: 4:50PM – 5:00PM
Room 320

Announcements of the Poster Awards, Student Travel Award winners, Division Awards, and the Asian American Journal of Psychology Best Paper Award. We will also be honoring the contributions of the outgoing Executive Committee Members.

MENTOR-MENTEE RECEPTION: 5:00PM – 6:PM
Various Rooms

This reception is a prime opportunity for Asian American students and early career professionals to network with more experienced professionals. Using a semi-structured format, students and professionals will be matched along similar topics of interest indicated on the registration questionnaire. Mentors will remain in designated tables/rooms for professional development topic areas, whereas mentees may alternate tables/rooms and mentors during the hour to meet their needs.

AAPA BANQUET: 7:00PM – 10:00PM
Aloy Modern Thai

Please make sure that you have received your banquet tickets from Registration and remember to bring your tickets to the banquet venue!
